

Kevin Vollrath

Kevin is a PhD Candidate at Princeton Theological Seminary in Religion and Society. He researches how the Israeli occupation of Palestine affects people with disabilities; his dissertation focuses on how two organizations of people with intellectual disabilities in Bethlehem understand disability and resist occupation. In his spare time he enjoys playing classical piano music, hiking, biking, and writing.